DAWN CARNEY - PROFILE

Dawn commenced her legal career at NUI Galway where graduated with a B. Corp Law (Honours) and LLB (Honours) Degrees. She qualified as a Solicitor in January, 2004.

She has since been conferred with a Diploma in Employment Law from the Law Society of Ireland.

Dawn spent over nine years in employment with Lewis C. Doyle & Co. Solicitors, one of Galway's leading Law Firms, before joining Sheehan and Company, Solicitors.

Dawn practices in the Firm's Litigation and Dispute Resolution Department and has a wealth of experience in dealing with litigation actions including Breach of Contract actions, Personal Injury actions and Insolvency and Corporate Debt Recovery. She represents clients at all Court levels and has extensive experience in both the prosecution and defence of claims.

Dawn also has extensive experience in Employment Law and has advised the Firm's clients in relation to employment issues, both contentious and non-contentious, on behalf of both employer and employee. She advises on day-to-day workplace issues including recruitment, leave entitlements, bullying and harassment and terminations and regularly assists clients in drafting employment contracts and human resource policies and procedures. She has established herself as an experienced Employment Litigator prosecuting and defending claims before the Rights Commissioners, Employment Appeals Tribunal and Equality Tribunal as well as handling claims before the courts

In her former role with Lewis C. Doyle & Company, Dawn gained extensive experience in handling residential and commercial property transactions, acting on behalf of a wide range of clients on acquisitions and disposals of commercial and residential properties as well as advising on commercial leases, licences agreements, letting agreements and landlord and tenant law generally and as a result has built up a high level of experience and expertise in these areas.
